CMH travelers can soon enjoy a distanced drink before boarding

COLUMBUS, OH – Starting Monday, April 12, passengers traveling through John Glenn Columbus International Airport (CMH) can purchase single servings of alcohol to-go in post-security areas of the airport.

This new amenity enhances the travel experience for those who prefer to find a quiet, distanced area to enjoy their beverage while waiting for their flight to depart.

Thanks to a recent provision to Ohio law, CMH joins a growing number of airports across the country in making this option available to passengers.

Beer, wine or cocktails can be purchased to-go at all post-security locations that are open and serving alcohol, which currently includes:

Concourse A:

- Chili's Too
- Vino Volo (coming soon)
- Donatos (coming soon)

Concourse B:

- Eddie George's Grille 27
- Wolfgang Puck Gourmet Express

Concourse C:

- PGA TOUR Grill
- Donatos (coming soon)

Beverage sales are limited to one per person, and all must be present and show a valid ID. Beverages may be consumed in all waiting areas beyond the security checkpoint. Passengers must finish or dispose of beverages before boarding their flight.

Due to evolving demand, some restaurants and shops may have adjusted hours. Visit FlyColumbus.com for updates.

About CRAA

The Columbus Regional Airport Authority connects Ohio with the world by managing and operating passenger-focused John Glenn Columbus International Airport \(CMH\), cargo-focused Rickenbacker International Airport \(LCK\), and general aviation airport Bolton Field (TZR).
